He told us of the history of the Coastguard from the 17th century, when smugglers in wool and brandy were prolific in East Kent. His slides showed the work of the present day Coastguard which covers one and a quarter million square miles of sea around the UK along with the shipping hazards that are involved.

The competition was won by Ann Weatherall, 2nd Ann Laker, 3rd Diane Potter and 4th Molly Walker. Our next meeting is on the 21st March when Trish Thompson will give us a talk on "The Kent Association for the Blind". #### Etchinghill Village Market

The new Village Market held its first market of the year on Saturday, 4th February. Despite the overnight snow and freezing temperatures, enough people turned out to make this a busy event. Most of the stall holders were not put off by the bad weather; there were several selling fresh food products, such as vegetables, bakery and meat. The next market will be held on Saturday 3rd March, Etchinghill Village Hall, from 10 am to 12.30 pm. Contact John White on 01303 863819 for further information.

Lyminge Heritage Questions and Answers

The Pilgrims' Way, the route that travels along at the base of the North Down's escarpment, is another subject that has not been covered in these articles. Originally, it is believed to have been a prehistoric trackway that was situated just off the sticky clay of the Weald yet not so high on the North Downs as to be windswept. Thus, its situation was ideal for east-west movement. It must be remembered that the whole of the landscape was probably wooded although this may have been less so near to the escarpment; another possible reason for the site of the trackway. It is thought to have originally started at Dover and stretched to Salisbury Plain although some claim that it may have ended at Canterbury and Winchester. Locally, the Pilgrims' Way is marked on the current 1:25,000 OS map on the road passing below Postling Wood and continuing as a track underneath Tolsford and Summer House Hill. The ancient trackway initially probably aided the westward drift of people but later it probably was a trade route bringing goods from the Continent and possibly the trade eastwards included chert, a tool making rock similar to flint, and Cornish tin for making bronze. It was possibly the route to Stonehenge for attending religious ceremonies.

There has been much debate whether the old trackway was ever used by mediaeval pilgrims travelling to Canterbury to visit the tomb of St Thomas à Becket and whether it ever extended all the way from Winchester to Canterbury (with an extension to or from Dover). The problem is that the earliest reference to the Pilgrims' Way or Road seems to be on maps dating to 1760-80. There is some archaeological evidence suggesting that the Pilgrims' Way was a road of some significance but this only applies to the site of the find and does not prove that the road extended all the way. Some documents suggest that nobility travelled between towns close to the Pilgrim's Way. Edward I travelled from Salisbury to Canterbury via Guilford, Wotton, Reigate and Leeds Castle in 1285 but the document does not confirm that the Pilgrims' Way was used.

There is much folklore associated with the Pilgrims' Way that has suggested that pilgrims travelled the route Yews are said to mark the route. Likewise, it is said that the large Roman Snails which can be found in abundance along the route at Charing and other places were left there by pilgrims. The pilgrims are also said to be responsible for the "Pilgrims' Cross" graffiti that is found on the walls of some churches along the route. This is often a cross with a second bar (see right). Another piece of folklore associated with the Way is that pilgrims' first glimpse of Canterbury was Bell Harry Tower as they emerged from King's Wood. Unfortunately, all these pieces of folklore have problems. Bell Harry Tower wasn't built until the 1490s in the last few decades of pilgrimage; Pilgrims' Crosses are also found in Churches at a distance from the Way; the Roman Snails were believed to have been introduced to England by the Romans and are commonly found in chalky areas; likewise, yew trees grow on chalk and are not particular to the Pilgrims' Way.

So, the Pilgrims' Way has not been proved to have been used by pilgrims in mediaeval times. However, this may not be so important as it has turned, with the often convergent North Downs Way, into a modern route of pilgrimage to Canterbury. If you would like to read more about this subject, I recommend The Pilgrims Way by Derek Bright (The History Press, 2011). If you have any questions or answers concerning our local heritage please contact me.

An Open Letter to The Chairman of The Parish Council "I start this letter with a thank you from myself and my wife for the thoughtful supply of road salt in bins around the parish during the recent icy period.

May I suggest that you inform the residents of the purpose of the salt. Our neighbour - doing the neighbourly thing, used some of the salt to clear the ice in a straight path down Wesley Terrace from Tayne Field to Canterbury Road. During this process she was berated by passers-by for using the salt. Therefore, I feel it would help people to know that they have the right to use the salt to clear the public foot paths and it would also help to know where the bins are located. Of course the public should also be told where they should not use the salt.

I would also add a further plea for the future, that where - for whatever reason, the paths are not or cannot be cleared by the residents outside their own property, can I ask the parish council to seek volunteer labour to spread the salt and the word? Thank you once again for your forward planning; let us hope volunteers come forward to help next time - hopefully not this winter. John & Vanessa Carr"

SHEPWAY FOOTPATH PRESERVATION SOCIETY

The S.F.P.S. have been leading walks for many years and regularly have 20 plus walkers taking part each week.

The object of the society is to keep as many footpaths as possible open, well-marked and well maintained. Many people would like to walk the countryside safely, but with less well marked and maintained footpaths they do not know where to start. We do and it is amazing where some of the paths start and finish sometimes, all without walking along our increasingly busy roads. Our walks vary in length but are always led by well trained leaders. Nobody is left behind as the leader's job is to keep the group together with the aid of a back-marker.

Several social events are incorporated into the programme, which include two short evening walks during the summer months, usually ending in a local hostelry. An annual dinner is held each year and in December we have a Christmas social event. Once a year we have our Annual General Meeting, which starts with a short walk, followed by an excellent lunch prior to the actual meeting. Our programme is advertised in all local public libraries and local newspapers if you wish to choose a walk you would like to try.

We would be pleased to welcome new walkers as we are keen to keep our footpaths open for all to enjoy. For further details please contact:

Etchinghill W.I.

There was a very good turnout of members and the trading table was a huge success selling cakes. Birthday posies were presented to Barbara Syrett and Alison Jelly.

Members were reminded that the W.I. would be celebrating the Queen's Diamond Jubilee at their meeting on May 15th. The dress attire would be to wear something red, white and blue and the competition is to decorate a hat.

Another ploughman's lunch in August has been arranged in aid of the Pilgrims Hospice, the president, Barbara Syrett reported that so far, we had raised £4,000 for the Hospice.

The speaker for the afternoon, Mr. Tony Cooper gave some interesting stories on Kent folk tales. The afternoon concluded with a wonderful tea, thanks to our hostesses June Price, Joyce Knapton and June Manton. The competition for an item with a Kentish theme was won by Julia Tappenden with Joy Bartley in second place.

Next meeting is on Tuesday, March 20 at 2.30pm in the village hall when Prue Anderton will speak on "Sunday Tea with Mrs. Read". New members and visitors are always welcome. More information from Barbara Syrett on 01303 265229 or Rita Warner on 01303 863503
